

“The Planetarium Song”

Text by ChatGPT
Prompter: Dario Tiveron

Verse 1

In a room filled with night, where dreams start to bloom,
The walls disappear, and there's light in the gloom.
Children in wonder, eyes wide and amazed,
Adults feel the echoes of stars from their youth's gaze.
For a hundred long years, these temples of skies,
Have lit up our world, put stars in our eyes.
From cities to mountains, they glow day and night,
A planetarium's call, a universe in sight.

Chorus

Under the stars, wherever you are,
You can find beauty from near or afar.
Stories of space, from days long ago,
Of planets and comets and lights that still glow.

Verse 2

Gazing up softly, the heavens unfold,
Nebulas, galaxies, mysteries told.
We marvel with the children, we reflect on the past,
As the universe murmurs, these memories will last.
From Germany to Japan, skies to explore,
A million hearts touched, and so many more.
A place for all dreamers, both young and old,
To drift among stars, let their spirits unfold.

Chorus

Under the stars, wherever you are,
You can find beauty from near or afar.
Stories of space, from days long ago,
Of planets and comets and lights that still glow.

Verse 3

So here's to a century of stars, moon, and sun,
Of worlds we explore, and stories begun.
A journey through ages, through space and through time,
In the heart of a dome where the cosmos will chime.

Outro

Come visit this place where the night never ends,
Where stars are our guides and the universe, our friend.
So step in the shadows, where stories unfold,
A planetarium awaits, with dreams to behold.